

How to send games to another phone

Continue

How to transfer a game to another phone. How to share a game to another phone.

You may not know it, but the phone you have today will double as a great gaming platform too. The latest generation of phones run an operating system - like Windows on your PC - that support downloaded games, or those purchased at a store. Traditional phones support BREW or J2ME based games, which are mostly sold and put on the phone by your phone provider. Prices range from $1 to $4 for a month-long trial, and $6 to $10 to purchase them outright. If you've got a Palm-based PDA hybrid, like the highly rated Treo 600 or Samsung i500, you can get a wide-range of games that run on the Palm platform. Here's a sampling of my favorite titles for each platform. Phone GamesAstrosmash: An almost perfect version of the Intellivision classic can be found on many cell-phones. As base commander you have to shoot bombs, missiles and flying saucers out of the sky without getting blown up yourself!The Elder Scrolls Travels: Stormhold: A great title for role-playing adventure fans. In this title you customize your character and then head off adventuring through dungeons, past monsters to freedom. You can even play the dark-side, if you wish.Fox Sports Racing: Real time racing comes to cell phones in this classic game. It's a nifty marriage of 2D and 3D gaming, and with Sorrent's Mobile Persona, you can play against users from around the world, and save your skills to a server in the sky.Jopardy: Yes, the TV show comes to your phone. Need I say more?The Lord of the Rings: The Two Towers: In this turn-based game you fight through six battle maps, and can control Aragorn, Legolas, Gimli and King Theoden. If you like Dungeons and Dragons, you'll love this game.Palm GamesAtari Retro: If you loved the classic old Atari arcade games, you're going to go ape over Atari Retro. Featuring Palm-based versions of Asteroids, Centipede, Pong, Missile Command and more, it'll work on your PDA/Phone or standard Palm device. For $30, from MDM it'll whisk you away to the games of your youth - or give you a clue about what your old man used to play.Dope Wars: By all rights, this oh-so-unPC game should not be any fun at all. But like the stuff you peddle, it's amazingly addictive. In Dope Wars you play a low-level drug dealer, as you select what substances to push, where to sell them, and then try to make a few bucks while avoiding the cops and your loan shark. Even better, it's available for free download - and you can even find one for J2ME-based cell phones too.Marc Saltzman's Top 300 Games for Palm OS: There are many, many more shareware and freeware games out there for the Palm OS. But if you don't want to spend all your free time searching, consider this $20 software from Handango. With 250 different titles, from clones of Mario and Missile Command to Poker and more.For more details on great mobile games, head to our portable games section at 1up.com.
